DETAILED ACTION

Acknowledgment

1. Acknowledgment is made that applicant's Amendment, filed on 28 August 2002, has been entered. Upon entrance of Amendment, claims 13-21 and 23-26 have been cancelled and claims 27 and 32 has been amended. Claims 27-43 are now pending in the application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claims 27, 28, 31, 32, and 37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kinoshita (6330265). Kinoshita discloses a surface emitting semiconductor laser Figs. 1, 2A, 3-7B, comprising a semiconductor structure including a substrate 1 and an epitaxial structure on the substrate 1, the epitaxial structure including a layer with an active region 3 at which light emission occurs, an upper 5 and lower 2 cladding layers surrounding the active layer 3, upper and lower faces, edge faces that terminate the semiconductor structure longitudinally, and electrodes, see col. 7, lines 10-17, at the upper and lower faces by which voltage can be applied across the epitaxial structure and the substrate 1; a distributed feedback grating 10, col. 7, lines 18-52 incorporated with the epitaxial structure comprising periodically alternating grating elements for a selected effective wavelength of light generation from the active region 3, the grating having a spacing between adjacent grating elements at a position intermediate the edge faces that corresponds to a selected phase shift 11 in the grating 10, the grating 10 formed and positioned to act upon the light generated in the active region 3 to produce lasing action and emission of light from at least one of the upper and lower faces of the semiconductor laser; and distributed Bragg reflector gratings 20, 21A(-E) incorporated with the epitaxial structure adjacent the distributed feedback grating 10 to reflect light back to the distributed feedback grating 10.

In regards to claim 28, Kinoshita discloses the distributed feedback grating is formed of alternating reflective and transmissive elements, see col. 12, lines 5-32.

In regards to claim 31, Kinoshita discloses means for confining the current from the electrode to a stripe region, see col. 11, lines 6-15 or see Figs. 24A-26B and col. 27, line 4-col. 29, line 20.

In regards to claim 32, Kinoshita discloses the distributed feedback grating is formed of alternating reflective and transmissive elements, see Figs. 1, 2A, 3-7B.

In regards to claim 37, Kinoshita discloses the spacing is in the middle of the grating, see Figs.1, 2A, 3, 5.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 29, 30, 33-36 and 38-43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kinoshita (6330265). Kinoshita, as applied to claims 27, 28, 31, 32, and 37 above, teach all the stated limitations except for the reflective grating element being made of gold and/or the transmissive grating element being air. Kinoshita does teach that high reflectivity regions may be formed by using metal films and transmissive regions being a window, see col. 12, lines 5-29. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a known material to reflect or transmit part of the laser output, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

In regard to claims 33-36 and 38-43, the materials, see col. 12, lines 5-12, wherein the active and cladding layers are made of, are well known in the art in order to obtain a laser of a desired wavelength. It would have been a matter of obvious design choice to select the materials wherein the active and cladding layers are made of based on their suitability for which they are to be used.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 27-43 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
